

FEREYDOUN AVE (b. 1945, Tehran, Iran).

Lives and works between Paris, France and Tehran, Iran.

Fereydoun Ave (b. 1945, Tehran) is an influential Iranian artist, curator, and cultural figure whose multifaceted practice spans painting, collage, photography, assemblage, textiles, set design, and curatorial work. Educated in England and the United States, Ave earned a BA in Applied Arts for Theatre from Arizona State University and studied film at NYU before returning to Tehran in 1970, just as the city's cultural scene was flourishing.

His work moves fluidly between abstraction and figuration, rooted in mythology, history, and the personal. Ave draws on a wide range of references—from Iranian wrestling and heroes of the 10th-century Shahnameh, to Greek mythology and contemporary allegory. "I'm a collage myself," he once said, capturing the essence of an artistic language where painterly gestures, repetition, calligraphic lines, and found objects all coexist.

Then come the four elements, the four seasons, and the tiny and mundane things: shells from the shores of the Seychelles, juicy figs in Greece, "Trompette de la Mort" and twigs near Paris, dahlias from his garden in Tehran—all dance before our eyes. These recurring motifs connect the metaphysical to the tangible, infusing Ave's compositions with memory and materiality.

After the 1979 Islamic Revolution, while many artists left Iran, Ave chose to remain. He became a key figure in the reemergence of the visual arts scene, founding 13 Vanak Street—an independent art space that operated under the radar for nearly two decades. Alongside his own practice, Ave has been a tireless supporter of other artists, fostering a sense of community and creative freedom amid often challenging circumstances.

His work has been exhibited extensively in Iran and internationally, and is held in the collections of institutions such as the British Museum, the Centre Pompidou, the Metropolitan Museum of Art, and the Tehran Museum of Contemporary Art. A 2020 retrospective at the British Museum and his inclusion in the 58th Carnegie International highlight his ongoing impact. Ave continues to live and work between Tehran and Paris, committed to a lifelong exploration of art, form, and the poetic every day.
